Table of Contents

Antitrust and Sports—Why Major League Soccer Succeeds Where Other Sports Leagues Have Failed
Paul D. Abbott................................................................. 1

Give Me $25 on Red and Derek Jeter for $26: Do Fantasy Sports Leagues Constitute Gambling?
Michael J. Thompson............................................................ 21

Offensive Interference: How Communities Have Harnessed Market Forces to Retain NFL Franchises, Eliminating the Need for H.R. 3817’s Proposed Antitrust Exemption
Steven John Kolias............................................................... 43

In the Fast Lane to Big Bucks: The Growth of NASCAR
Michael A. Cokley................................................................. 67

Tax Considerations for U.S. Athletes Performing in Multinational Team Sport Leagues or “You Mean I Don’t Get All of My Contract Money?!”
Kevin Koresky................................................................. 101

Restoring Joy to Bracketville: Problems Facing College Basketball Stimulate Responses from the NCAA and the Newly Formed Student Basketball Council
John Slosson................................................................. 125

Football Helmets and Products Liability
Brian James Mills................................................................. 153
Eliminate Violence from Sports Through Arbitration, Not the Civil Courts
Jeffrey M. Schalley............................................................... 181

Instant Repay: Upon Further Review, the National Football League’s Misguided Approach to the Signing Bonus Should Be Overturned
David J. Sipusic................................................................. 207

America’s Cup, The Ideal Example of Sportsmanship
Sarah Catherine Berges....................................................... 249

Structural Barriers in Antidoping Measures
An Essay by Daniel P. Fox.................................................... 271

Tulane Moot Court Mardi Gras Invitational:
Problem................................................................................. 281
Winning Brief......................................................................... 297

Cumulative Index (Volumes 1-9):
Table of Cases Discussed...................................................... 329
Subject Index........................................................................ 339