Table of Contents

Fielding the Board’s “Punt”: Unionization and the College Athlete
   Michael Bohling ....................................................................... 1

A Not-So-Solid Verbal: Using Contract Law Concepts To Solidify Verbal Agreements in College Football
   Benjamin Cranston ................................................................. 37

You Can Have Your Game but You Can’t Advertise It Too: Fantasy Sports and the Right of Publicity
   Tess Heisserer ........................................................................ 63

Tackling Head Injuries in Youth and Interscholastic Football with NFL Contract Reform
   Theresa S. Kim ....................................................................... 71

Fair or Foul: The Baseball Rule’s Place in Modern Major League Baseball
   Vincent C. Lucchese .............................................................. 95

It’s Time To Retire the NBA’s Rookie Salary Scale
   Derek J. Rowe ...................................................................... 123

Striking Out the Cuban Trade Embargo: A Contractual Approach to the Transfer of Cuban Baseball Players to the Big Leagues
   Nicole Zaworska .................................................................. 135

“You Can’t Do That!”: Proposal To Eliminate Student-Led Cheers at Wisconsin High Schools’ Athletic Events Infringes on High School Students’ Protected First Amendment Rights
   Marcus L. Foster .................................................................. 165
Wake Up Call: How the Ray Rice Incident Opened the Public’s Eyes to Domestic Violence in Professional Sports and the Need for Change
   Tate Martin ................................................................. 183

CrossFit, Inc. v. National Strength & Conditioning Ass’n: Industry Competitor Blames CrossFit for Injuring People in an Effort To Avoid Injuring Its Own Business
   Mary Becker ............................................................... 215

Ibe v. Jones: A Seat at the Super Bowl Games Does Not Entitle the Ticketholder to an Unobstructed View of the Scoreboard
   James Benjamin Cooper ............................................. 229

Tulane University Law School Moot Court Mardi Gras Invitational: 2016 Competition
   Problem ................................................................. 243
   Winning Brief ............................................................ 285